HOLD COURT AT 'BUD' MARSHALL BEDSIDE TODAY

A dramatic scene will be enacted beside the bed of Harold "Bud" Marshall, 26-year-old Laguna Beach taxicab driver, at St. Joseph hospital this afternoon at 3, as his confessed attackers, sheriff's officers and district attorney's officers, with Justice A. W. Swayze of Orange, convert the hospital room into a courtroom.

The attackers, Jerry Vance, Chino, and Edgar "Don" DeBord, Ontario, both 18, who confessed they enticed Marshall into Laguna Canyon, attacked and robbed him, and when he resisted, shot him, will face preliminary hearing on kidnapping charges filed against them by the district attorney and sheriff. The kidnapping law provides as penalty, upon conviction, death by hanging, life imprisonment without hope of parole, or life imprisonment with parole possible.

Under guard of Deputy Sheriffs James Workman and Fred Humiston, the two youths were rushed to Laguna Beach yesterday afternoon to face Justice C. C. Cravath on additional charges of robbery and assault with deadly weapon, and the judge set July 31 as the time for preliminary hearing of those charges. Judge Cravath refused to dismiss the robbery-assault charges pending the kidnapping case settlement. Proceedings at Laguna occupied barely 10 minutes and the courtroom was virtually empty with no more than a dozen present. It was believed a disturbance might result because of the "high" feeling of residents against the youths who attacked the popular Marshall, now lying paralyzed at St. Joseph.

PREVAILING WAGE RATES IN EFFECT

New prevailing wage rates for more than 2000 Works Progress Administration workers went into effect today, but the only result in the program will be a decrease in the number of hours per month the workers are employed, automatically raising their wages. County WPA Manager Dan Mulholland today said that his entire office force is busy getting the new setup under way.

Clarence Double Resigns Post As Deputy Sheriff

With resignation of Clarence Double, deputy sheriff, today, Miss Grace Hall, recent employee in the district attorney's office, took his place at the sheriff's office desk.

Double resigned to take full charge of a new confectionery business he recently obtained on Ocean boulevard at Huntington Beach, his former home. Miss Hall worked in the sheriff's office some eight or 10 years ago, when Sheriff C. E. Jackson was in office. Later she worked in the county clerk's office before joining the district attorney's staff. Miss Hall lives at 1312 North Ross street, Santa Ana.

FINAL RITES HELD FOR ANTHONY ADAMS

The beautiful ritual of the Elks lodge was read yesterday at the Harrell and Wagner chapel, when funeral services were held for Anthony A. Adams, 41, who passed away Saturday at St. Joseph's hospital. The Rev. Harry Evan Owens, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted a brief service preceding the service conducted by G. L. Motry, exalted ruler, and other officers of the Santa Ana Elks lodge of which Mr. Adams was a member.

The funeral was largely attended and many floral tributes surrounded the flag-draped casket. Mr. Adams was a member of the American Legion post of Santa Ana and taps were sounded at the close of the service.

One of the first to enlist at the time of the World War, Mr. Adams was married shortly after his enlistment to Miss Gertrude Roper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Parke S. Roper. Other survivors are his sister, Mrs. Gertrude Hansen of Santa Ana, and two brothers, Walter H. Adams of Santa Ana and C. H. Adams of Orange.

NEW MANAGER FOR GEN. PETE TO MOVE HERE

Appointment of H. W. Low as manager of its Santa Ana branch plant has just been announced by General Petroleum corporation.

Mr. Low, who recently assumed his new position, comes to Orange county with the backing of many years experience in the oil business. He has been associated with the sales department of General Petroleum for four and a half years. Previous to this, he was connected with the White Eagle Refining company, being stationed at Des Moines, and was formerly connected with the Vacuum Oil company.

Last Thursday and Friday evening, at a meeting conducted at the Santa Ana hotel, Mr. Low was officially introduced to the service station managers and salesmen engaged in marketing Mobilgas, Mobiloil and other General Petroleum products dispensed by many service stations in various cities served by the Santa Ana plant of the company.

The meeting was conducted by Lester Gates, supervisor for the company in Orange county, and among principal speakers was E. E. Bame, of Los Angeles, assistant manager of stations for the Southern California division.

Enthusiasm was expressed at the meeting over the aggressive and continuous advertising campaign conducted by the company this year, a campaign in which newspapers, including the Santa Ana Register, are playing an important part.

In the very near future, Mr. and Mrs. Low and their four children will move to Santa Ana to take up their permanent residence.

J. E. Jones, former manager of the Santa Ana General Petroleum plant, has transferred to a position in the Los Angeles sales district.

of the United States coast and geodetic survey in 1917, remaining with the bureau until 1925 when he resigned to enter other lines of work. He had received his commission at that time as a lieutenant, junior grade. During the World war the bureau was taken over by the navy department, and Overshiner was engaged in engineering duties at the Atlantic fleet base near Norfolk, Va. He is the son of Charles Overshiner, 638 French street, Santa Ana postmaster for many years.

BORAH'S LAST GESTURE

There was tense drama in this perhaps final gesture of Senator William E. Borah for agreement with the new powers in his party. Conferring with ex-Senator David A. Reed, left, Pennsylvania old guardman, over a crumpled copy of the platform draft at the G. O. P. convention, Borah demanded a revision in the monopoly plank. Reed, after a short parley, refused to consent to an alteration, then rose and walked away. The old Idaho warrior stood, glaring, for a moment and departed, intimating that he might bolt.

POLICE PROBE ACTIVITIES OF PANTLESS MAN P. O. RECEIPTS SHOW INCREASE OVER YEAR AGO

Unsung and uninvited, Charles McKinyon, 45-year-old Los Angeles Negro, walked into Anaheim this morning with a suit of winter underwear, an overcoat, no shirt and no pants.

At noon, McKinyon was still waiting in the county jail for someone to find him a pair of pants by which he could leave jail in a more dignified manner.

"You see, I was down to my brother's cabin at Elsinore and it was mighty hot there," said McKinyon. "I was watering the lawn and so I jee' took off my pants and shirt to be more comfortable."

"Why did you put on the overcoats if you were so warm?" he was asked.

"Oh, jee' 'cause I didn't have my pants on," it was said he answered.

Picked up by Anaheim police, he was escorted to jail by Deputy Sheriff James Workman who did not place him under arrest. McKinyon said his brother, Matthew, lives in Los Angeles, retired on pension after 30 years in government service. Police were investigating his activities in Riverside county today with the idea of determining whether he watered the lawn at Matthew's cabin or left a hospital cot in a fevered mood.

Funeral services for Mrs. Susan E. Hutchins, 79, who passed away at her home, 1617 Palm street, Santa Ana, yesterday, will be held from the Chapel of Edwards and Cummings, Pasadena, tomorrow. ## BATTLE OVER EDGAR JOHNSON WILL REVIVED

The battle over the $140,000 estate of H. Edgar Johnson, Fullerton publisher who died leaving a heated controversy over his will, flared into the open again today when his widow, Jessie Elvira Johnson, whom in his will the former publisher declared was not his legal wife, filed a new action in superior court seeking to break the will.

A petition was filed for revocation of probate of the will of the Fullerton publisher, naming Jessie Elvira Johnson as contestant. Respondents named were H. C. Head, as executor, Charles Johnson, Marvin Johnson, Virginia Remington, L. A. Coe, Mrs. Cordelia Whitney, Grace Johnson, Mrs. O. B. Evans, and Beverly Johnson, as legatees.

Johnson died May 16, 1935, at Fullerton. The petition filed today claimed Johnson was not of sound and disposing mind and not competent to make a will. It was asked that the court revoke the will and determine it null and void. It was stated that the wife could get 50 per cent of the estate should the will be broken.

Johnson was married in Ventura in 1932, and had signed an affidavit saying that Beverly was his child. When he died he repudiated this statement, declaring that it was made under duress. He also questioned the legality of his marriage to Mrs. Johnson, because she had secured a "mail order" divorce from her former husband. He also denied that Beverly was his child.

He gave his wife a $25,000 Beverly Hills home and a $5400 trust fund for the child. Other large gifts were made to relatives. Last January in superior court here, Mrs. Johnson was granted $300 a month, and Head then, as executor, appealed to appellate court to reduce this monthly sum to $100, saying the estate would be eaten up by having the principle reduced. No decision has been handed down as yet from the appellate court.

A NEW ACHIEVEMENT A GASOLINE BUILT TO GIVE MORE MILES AT ANY SPEED

Louie Meyer got 14.45 miles per gallon of Gilmore gasoline in winning the Indianapolis race at 109 miles per hour... while the fifth place driver at 106 miles per hour, averaged 13.33 miles per gallon with a competitive fuel... Yes, there is a difference in gasolines!

Here's a new Red Lion gasoline, proved and improved under the most grueling conditions... right in competition with other refiners' products.

In the Indianapolis race, Louie Meyer used Gilmore... and although traveling at a greater speed than the fifth place driver (who used another brand of gasoline)... he achieved 8.4% better mileage. New Red Lion was created

The program had hardly started last night when a frantic woman entered the banquet hall. She was looking for a doctor, and it had to be a certain doctor, not just any old doctor. Finally she spotted him. "That's the man," she cried and made a dash for Curtis Bowman. "He promised to marry me." The frantic woman was just having fun. When the confused Bowman was finally convinced that he was the victim of a practical joke the young lady was introduced as Alyse Joy, nationally known and self-styled Hobo Reporter, who was speaker on last night's program. Following a report on the recent district 4 convention held in Long

'RAH! SHORTS FOR STENOGRS!

That Yonkers, N. Y., ban on women wearing shorts is proving a boon to alert press agents, even if it does keep comfort-minded girls out of the modest suburb's environs. The employees of Charles Atlas, New York physical culturist, saw a chance to make short work of cumbersome skirts and won his permission to wear shorts at the office. The press agent heard of it, so you see Atlas dictating to shorts-clad Ruth Laury. If the idea catches on in other offices, they'll have started a new fad.

Flying Around With Dale Deckert

Twenty-one new students were registered at the Floyd Wright School of Flying during the past few weeks, which brings the number to well over 100 active students. Those enrolling were: Walt Compton, Luke Riedeman, of Costa Mesa; Louis Bettschart, Ted Martin, Fred Arevalos, Lloyd Kneeland, Dean Jessie, Keith Jessie, Henry Bulley and Bob Wright, of Santa Ana; Bob Buckles, Vincent Hale, Charles Feenster, Donald Edwanson, of Placentia; Ralph Gridley of Newport Beach; Bob Adams of Tustin; Don Struck and G. W. Stewart of Orange; Cecil Wheat of Huntington Beach; and Jack Dutton of San Clemente.

Eddie Martin returned from a two weeks trip to the East with his boss, Mr. McMillan; and reports that the trip itself was a joy with the exception that Roscoe Turner, who accompanied them, walks in his sleep. And now Eddie wants somebody to donate a bell to hang around Roscoe's neck to prevent him from taking a nose dive from a 20th floor hotel room.

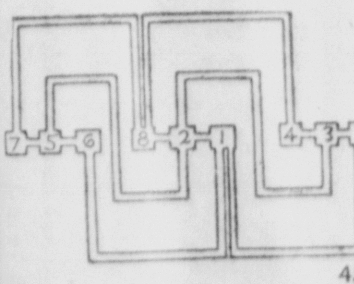

and Delbert Tucker of Santa Ana are the ace students of the week at the Eddie Martin Airport, as both have made their "Solo" hops. They were instructed by Floyd Wright and both are keeping up their flying, and expect to have enough hours shortly to enable them to secure a government private pilots' license.

The folks down Balboa way have complained at various times about the low flying—and now comes the lowdown! It seems as though a lot of sun worshippers have been using the roofs of their cottages to get an even tan and more Vitamin D than the beaches allow. . . . Enough said!

Hangar Gossip—Geraldine Williamson took her first cross country flight during the past week with her instructor Floyd Wright. . . . "Ace" Kyle was flying around at 5:30 a. m. Sunday . . . but after the lowdown mentioned above we'll bet machines that it will be mid-afternoon flying next Sunday. . . . ## Brain Twizzlers

By Prof. J. D. Flint

A hunting expedition in Africa captured eight gorillas. The gorillas were placed in cages in the ground which were connected by trenches as the diagram above shows. The gorillas were numbered as shown and it was found necessary to rearrange them in order 1, 2, 3, etc., through 8, leaving the 9th cage vacant. It was necessary to move them in the fewest moves possible, each time placing one in the only vacant cell available, no two being allowed in one cell at any time. What are the moves. You might draw a rough diagram and use numbered counters to help you. That way the moves can be simply recorded 3-7-3-4, or—you solve it!

Answer to Yesterday's Twizzler
There were 66 ducks in the flight. Add the same number and you have 72, then half as many or eighteen and you have ninety, then one-fourth or nine, you have ninety-nine, and the lone duck makes the hundredth.
Simple isn't it?

Men had THEIR CHANCE

—but took Women to show the West
how Appetizing a bread can be!

Chemists have technical methods for judging bread (and most chemists happen to be men). Women think this fact explains usual baker's breads. Not bad—just interesting to eat.

Women were eager to develop a more appetizing bread. Housewives worked with home economists. That's how "woman's recipe" bread was born. That's why this loaf is exciting to taste.

New "wom's recipe" loaf is sensation

BY JULIA LEIGHT
Head of one of the largest Home Economics

From what people tell me I am sure no bread introduced in years has gained favor so quickly as new loaf. Housewives I've talked are enthusiastic about it (I've talked with hundreds!)

They say this new breads better than common store loaf. That it's more delicate and tender it makes finer, more delicious.

Do you know the reason Western women developed this bread. It's a woman's idea of everything that really good bread should be!

Because it is "woman's recipe" bread we naturally use only such fine ingredients as you insist on for your pantry-shelves (this means we put more money into each loaf, I believe, than bakers usually do).

And another nice thing is this. Julia Lee Wright Bread reaches you so tender-soft and fresh that it keeps longer in your bread box. This means welcome economy for housewives!

increased power to the federal government, and not meet another Waterloo when his laws go up against the supreme court?"

This question is answered in the negative by most of the non-partisan observers who have been consulted.

ALTERNATIVE

The point is made that the personnel of the supreme court in all probability could not be made over during the next four years to such an extent as to reverse the court's fundamental position.

The court was not 5 to 4 on the crucial test of the New Deal—the proposal to assert federal control over business within the states. It was unanimous in voiding the NRA. It reiterated its position, taken many years ago and often embedded in precedent cases, the production, manufacturing, mining and commerce not interstate in character cannot be controlled by the federal government. The appointment of even four new justices would not change that position, in the opinion of many experienced jurists and lawyers.

Hence they believe that, if Mr. Roosevelt should continue efforts in that direction, he would be forced to sound the battle-cry for alteration of the constitution to bring about his proposed new order of American life.

BATTLE

The G.O.P. is massing its forces to convince the country that the "if" in the Democratic platform is the prelude to a determined effort to put through immediately a new order of federal control of all business—the annihilation of state power and local self-government.

There are side issues that distract, and brilliant personalities on both sides that attract attention; but cold analysis by impartial men convinces them that the dominant issue is whether the national government shall take over powers now exercised by the state or the people themselves.

With millions taking the pro and con on this question it is believed that it will overshadow all other issues.

$2391 COLLECTED IN FINES BY CITY

City court activity for June stole a march over May, this year, and over June, last year, Judge J. G. Mitchell's monthly report revealed today. During the past month, 325 cases came before him and $2391.30 was collected in fines.

The May record shows 303 cases handled, with fines collected in the amount of $1917.80; June, 1935, shows 212 cases handled with fines collected totaling $1,676.90.

Five muskrats were introduced into Europe from North America in 1905. Today there are more than 100,000,000 on the Continent.

VALUE OF ART TOPIC OF TALK TOKIWANIAN

The commercial value of art was the basis of an address today by Ed C. Northridge before members of the Santa Ana Kiwanis club at their noon meeting in the James cafe. Northridge is an official of the Allied Advertising Artists company of Los Angeles.

Art, whether it is recognized or not, plays an extremely important part in modern advertising, Northridge told Kiwanians. Studios throughout the country have recognized this fact and have organized accordingly. They have their visualizers, who are really the heads of the studios, specialists in certain lines of art work, and advertising engineers.

The handling of colors, the placing of figures in the spaces provided, and numerous other problems all must be worked out by the commercial artists. Actually, there are about 2500 variations of colors, and during the years to come they will be put to unheard of uses, Northridge predicted.

Modern advertising is based on one thing in particular, and that is the ability of the ad to attract the attention of the reader and make him stop for a moment. To do this, advertising engineers and commercial artists employ many tricks of color and representation. Recently, a new field has been opened to commercial art, and that is the designing of packages and containers. In this new field, it is necessary to employ engineers as well as artists.

The meeting today was under the direction of Ed Elfstrom, temporary program chairman.

Local Briefs

Mrs. H. D. Barless, 1633 West Eighth street, Santa Ana, received a cut knee last night at Fifth and Western as cars operated by her husband and Ernest Rodgers, 708 Russell avenue, Garden Grove, collided in the intersection. Officers C. V. Adams and L. H. Nicholson rendered first aid.

John Roberts, local mail carrier, wishes his friends here to know that it was not he who visited a local drug store recently and demanded poison with which to kill himself, he said today. Police were called to investigate the man's demands but he had left when they arrived. "Certainly anyone who believed they saw me at the drug store was very much mistaken," Roberts said. "It is ridiculous to think that I was the man who demanded poison and certainly must have been a case of mistaken identity."

Wind velocity yesterday averaged 4.9 m.p.h., according to records at the Santa Ana Junior college meteorological station. Temperatures ranged from 61 at midnight to 74 at 2 p. m. Relative humidity was 77 per cent at 6 p. m.

The Young Democrats of Santa Ana will hold a dinner meeting at the Green Cat Cafe on Monday, July 20th, at 6:30 p. m. Democratic congressional, senatorial and assembly candidates will be present. Reservations may be made on application to any member of the club or by phoning the Green Cat Cafe.

Members of the Rotary club Boy Scout troop have opened stands for the sale of fireworks in Santa Ana, according to announcement made today by Frank Nickey, Scoutmaster. The proceeds from the sales will be used to defray expenses of the troops at camp. Fireworks are being sold at Washington and Main, Orange County Market, Fourth and Ross, and the headquarters at 115 East Fourth street.

Terrence H. Malloran, county SRA manager, today informed around 450 relief clients dependent on the SRA for relief, that their checks will be delayed until next Monday. They were supposed to go out within the next day or two, but press of state business at the close of the fiscal year has made it impossible to get the checks through, Malloran said. The case load is the lowest of record.

Julian M. Button, 22, and Floyd G. Dickenson, 21, both of Anaheim, have filed application for a marriage license in Riverside.

Owing to absence of several directors, meeting of the Orange county Farm Bureau board of directors, scheduled for tomorrow, has been postponed until sometime during the second week of this month. Cecil Marks, field secretary, announced today. The directors' meeting will be held simultaneously with that of the general officers, he said.

ALACK

If you will look behind the figures into specific lines of industries you will make more discoveries. Take steel, which has shown such remarkable improvement lately. The steel output for April was 100 and for May 105, while employment in the industry for those two months was 77.9 and 80 respectively. Take autos. The auto output was 124 in April and 118 in May, employment 108 and 104.8. In other words, production is stepping up faster than employment, and the recovery of certain industries has not brought normal employment in them.

Most notable example, of course, is tobacco. It was producing on a 145 per cent basis in May, but employment was on a 87 per cent basis.

The apparent cause of the disparity, of course, is the efficiency improvement in production methods perfected in industry in the last 10 years. Many such improvements were made before 1929.

WASHINGTON

By Ira Bennett

CROSSROADS

G.O.P. pundits have been x-raying the Democratic platform, hoping to find weak joints and splintered planks that might give them an opportunity to knock it to flinders. They find it an extraordinary piece of workmanship, conceived by a cunning brain. If it isn't "horse-high, bull-proof and hog-tight" it at least stands firm against first assaults.

The hand of Franklin Roosevelt is visible all through the platform. Delegates who served on the platform committee, back in Washington, insist that there was genuine disagreement and honest compromise on many planks—but the general opinion is that what Senator Wagner carried in his pocket from the White House emerged victorious at Philadelphia.

By what it implies, in its glimpse of bold future developments if its champion is kept in power, the platform is regarded by national observers as a crossroads sign pointing to an entirely new system of life in America.

SPEED

Inquiry among keen, experienced and detached men, including jurists of eminence, brings the opinion that the platform declaration concerning possible change of the constitution is advance notice of a national battle. The president's acceptance speech sharpens the issue by making clear his determination to drive forward with laws which may be overturned by the judicial power, in which case he will demand amendment of the constitution as duly provided, but swiftly.

RUNAWAY BRIDE

CHAPTER XII

THE day following Phil's request that Marcia leave immediately was Sunday. Because it was, there was no train with proper accommodations until late in the morning. Marcia decided that she would slip away without goodbye to anyone except Marion who knew that she was leaving.

Marion, though, interfered with this arrangement. "By the way, we all meet in the dining room and get our own breakfasts on Sunday, when we have lots of people at the house," she said.

Marcia silently eliminated breakfast from her schedule. She was sitting in her room, the blue hat on, her face pale and her eyes ringed with violet, waiting for the station wagon, when Marion came into the room.

"Marcia Cunningham, you look like the last of the ten plagues of Israel. What in the world—but you have to have some breakfast before you go. You can't just sit here!"

So she went into the dining room, and perfunctorily poured some coffee and splattered a waffle iron with batter.

Camilla was making pancakes and creaming beef to go with them. At first the significance of this action was lost on Marcia. Then she realized that Camilla was making very good pancakes and the creamed meat looked tempting. Camilla could cook! Well, Phil wouldn't be hungry, anyway, in the Pampas.

HER own waffles were ready and she put them on a plate. To prolong the motion of doing something she pretended that she would like some bacon and covered the waffles to keep them hot. Phil had drawn near. He had a coffee cup in one hand.

"Phil, you haven't eaten?" she said. "Here, take this. I'll fix some more."

"Marcia, don't tempt me! That's a dish fit for a king instead of a poor engineer!" He looked at it hungrily. "Cam's getting some pancakes and stuff ready for two or three of us and I'm pledged elsewhere!"

Cam's bright voice broke into the conversation. She carried a plate in each hand and Bob was with her.

"Here, my lollipops," she motioned to the two men—"I've prepared your food. Now draw up your chairs and eat while I prepare refills."

she slipped out of the room, ran across the veranda, climbed into the wagon.

She was running away again, running away this time because she had been asked to go. Phil might have been a little more attentive, she mused, as the wagon started.

"Marcia, wait! Hey, driver—" She heard a voice calling her. She knew that it came from Phil but she did not look back. "Never mind, please," she told the driver. "I think we had better hurry."

THERE was no boat for three days, she learned in Paris. The morning of the third day the clerk told her that Camilla was registered once more.

"Oh yes," she repeated. That must mean that Phil had come, too, and he would see that she had not left.

"Both young gentlemen are with her," the clerk added. "There is to be a wedding at the American embassy at noon, but you probably know that."

"Yes, yes, of course," she answered, and went out to walk in the rain that was just beginning. She decided that she would take her luggage and go at once to Cherbourg and stay there until the boat sailed the next afternoon at 6.

It was dusk when she came back to the hotel. She stepped aside to watch a porter carrying out some luggage. "C. M." She read the initials on the bags. Camilla Howe. The wedding was over. She saw more bags in the arms of another porter. "P. B." So there had been a wedding! Not until then did she realize that somewhere, in the far corners of her mind, she had been hoping that it might be Bob whom Camilla was marrying. She knew now. That was something.

Her feet dragged as she walked to the elevator. She could feel the water oozing in her slippers and did not care. A girl stepped from the car as Marcia waited for the passengers to leave. Glancing up, she saw Camilla.

"Marcia! We scoured the city for you! Wish me luck, honey! I'm married, and I wanted you there!"

"I hope you'll be ever so happy, Camilla. I know you will. Phil's a darling—" She wondered at the clearness of her own voice.

"Phil? But it wasn't Phil, Marcia. I married Bob!"

"Bob?" Marcia's eyes grew wider and grayer. "Camilla, you married Bob?"

THEN she was gone before Marcia could explain that she hadn't meant that at all—that she was surprised—she couldn't very well admit that she was delighted—that it wasn't Phil. But Phil's luggage was going somewhere—

Marcia hurried to the desk.

"Mr. Kirkby—when did he check out?"

"Two hours ago. His bags are following him to Cherbourg. He's gone to his boat."

"His boat? But there's no boat leaving for New York until tomorrow!"

"He's sailing to Rio de Janeiro."

So Phil was leaving, believing that she had not cared to answer when he called! He couldn't do that. He loved her!

"May I have a porter in a hurry?" she asked the clerk. "And prepare my bills, please. I'm checking out immediately."

Hats, gowns, suits, coats, those with a Paris label and those without, went into the bags. Toilet articles, stockings, shoes, handkerchiefs—they were packed in a few minutes and the bags were closed. The porter put them in a cab and Marcia gave hurried directions.

"The boat train to Cherbourg."

The train was falling in a steady downpour when she reached the tender that would carry her to the big ship. The last-minute confusion of sailing was progressing a little wearily. Marcia felt let down. Phil had not been on the train and she had not found him on the tender. But he must be on the boat. Yet she had not seen him when the engines began to groan and the gangplank was taken up. The night grew darker. She climbed the narrow iron steps to the upper deck and sat down in a lifeboat. When the confusion was over she would ask for his cabin.

Then she saw him. He was standing near a smokestack, hands in his pockets, eyes on the vanishing coastline.

"Phil!" She called softly.

He turned, wonderingly, and waited.

"Phil!" She climbed down from the boat.

This time he turned and came to her. "Marcia!" His hands held hers tightly and his eyes searched her face. "What are you doing here?"

"Sailing."

"But the boat isn't going to New York, Marcia. It's bound for South America. You mean you knew—" Her heart stirred suddenly under the gladness that leaped into the watching blue eyes.

"The ship is going to Paradise," she answered. "It's a wonderful place, Paradise. I've never been there, but once you showed me a spire!"

TIMES WRITER LAUDS ORANGE COUNTY FORESIGHTEDNESS IN CONTRACTING FOR NEW WATER

Herewith is printed the second and last article on "Orange County's Water Problem," written by Harold M. Finley, a staff writer in the Los Angeles Times:

BY HAROLD M. FINLEY

II.

The problem of managing our dwindling water supplies is no more acute in Orange county than in some other parts of the South Coastal Basin and the rural area in that productive realm is not the only garden spot whose growers have an eye on the Colorado River Aqueduct's abundant flow. It so happens that the Orange county folk have been a bit more alert than the rest in taking steps to study the possibilities of water from this source. The importation of Owens River Aqueduct water saved the day for Los Angeles when it was becoming apparent that wells would not forever serve, and made the city's continued progress possible. Development elsewhere, however, in cities, towns and countryside, has been made at the cost of a constant overdraft on nature's underground reservoirs. That overdraft, engineers tell us, now amounts to 200,000,000 gallons a day.

Growers on 200 square miles in the western part of the basin are pumping from below sea level; 50 square miles near the ocean have been rendered worthless because of the intrusion of salt water. The outlook for 250 square miles in the basin is critical; overdraft on wells in 150 square miles has brought about a dangerous situation.

The importation of Colorado River water will change all that for communities that participate in its use. There are 2200 square miles, or about 1,400,000 acres, of what a recent aqueduct engineering report calls "first-class, habitable lands" within the basin. The great conduit will bring in 1,100,000 acre feet annually to add to the 1,000,000 now being developed and used for all purposes from local and outside sources in the area. There will be no danger of diminution in this volume—Hoover dam makes possible the storage of over 30,000,000 acre feet of water from a stream that is constantly replenished from the snows of the Rockies, and that represents a five-year supply for all water uses.

For many South Coast Basin communities all this means an opportunity for renewed expansion of the kind that has marked the Southland's progress in the past. For others, it represents a

"I had been sick for sometime suffering with a stubborn case of stomach trouble," continued Mrs. Lobo. "Regardless of my diet I would bloat until I would often have to sit up in bed at night to get my breath. I would spit up foods after eating, heartburn was terrible and I was badly constipated. Poisons filled my system and in spite of all I tried I could not find anything to help me. Rheumatism soon settled over my body, my limbs and hands swelled badly and the pain was so severe I could hardly endure it at times. I spent lots of money to get relief—but it was simply money thrown away for they all failed when put up against a stubborn case like mine—but Gly-Cas was different—it seemed to begin to give results where others had left off."

"In Gly-Cas I found everything that was needed to give me back my health," continued Mrs. Lobo. "My entire system was cleansed of its poisons, thoroughly eliminating every ache and pain. My stomach and bowels are now fine, have a good appetite, sleep good as if new strength and energy has been given me. I cannot say half enough in praising this wonderful Gly-Cas it has done so much for me."

So it goes—another case right here in Santa Ana where Gly-Cas has accomplished the seemingly impossible after all else tried had failed—no need experimenting with untried medicines—DEMAND GLY-CAS.

Gly-Cas is sold by McCoy's Drug Co., 108 West Fourth St., Santa Ana, and by leading drug stores in surrounding towns.

the county's water problem. The best that could be hoped for from them, it appears, is that they might serve to halt or, at least slow down, the annual overdraft.

About 150,000 acres are now under irrigation in Orange county, recent figures show, somewhat less than that actually cultivated, included are some of the finest citrus plantings in California, a sizable acreage in avocados and rarer subtropical fruits, walnut groves, lands in beans and other field crops and large garden areas given over to all-year production of vegetables. There is around 75,000 acres, now large, dry-farmed, that, with water, would fit into the same splendid picture. Little farms on which city workers dwell and produce for their tables are found all around the cities. Forty miles of ocean frontage with rapidly growing residential communities is a source of county pride and, incidentally, of water concern.

What interests Orange county most now, say those who are working earnestly to secure a supplemental water supply from the Colorado, is to see present irrigation needs met without a further overdraft upon existing reserves. Then would come the systematic spreading of water from the same source in underground channels so that water tables could gradually be built up to where they were when the overdraft started. Expansion could come when it was justified.

Colonel Finley is convinced that Southern California is on the eve of another era of rapid population growth. The first thing future investors in any community will want to know before buying property or mortgages and bonds secured thereby, he declares, will be whether the adequacy and permanency of the community's water supply is assured. He wants rural Orange county to insure its future now by taking steps to secure what he says is the only adequate and dependable water supply that will ever be available—by joining the Metropolitan Water District.

Church Meeting Set for Tonight

MIDWAY CITY, July 1.—A business meeting of the Midway City Community church is scheduled for this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hazard. The matter of continuing the monthly potluck church dinners during the summer will be discussed. The business meeting will follow the weekly prayer meeting, which will open at 7:30 o'clock.

LEGIONNAIRE ANSWERS CALL IN EMERGENCY

Three bombs shot into the sky at 7:04 o'clock last evening from the American Legion hall headquarters on Birch as an emergency call to Legion and auxiliary members. Within 20 minutes, 215 Legionnaires responded in person and four by telephone, and 36 members of the Auxiliary appeared at headquarters, according to official checkup of Adjutant Harold Rasmussen. Held annually, the emergency call, such as the one last night, is a test of man-power to determine its availability in cases of actual disaster calls. Emergency Committee Chairman Charles Neer pointed out, Rasmussen and Bud Meeks are Neer's lieutenants under the recently arranged committee setup, and together with other members of the committee, "take charge" of furnishing guards, medical service, food and other supplies which might be necessary.

Chairman Neer has arranged, with his committee, a plan whereby certain business house supplies are made available at any and all times in emergency cases. Physicians throughout the county also are designated in the plan to direct necessary medical treatment of the injured.

"It was a fine show of strength and I am happy over the immediate response," Neer said today. "The organization stands ready to assist the community at any time in case of emergencies."

Governor Merriam Is Champion Of Safety

Individual effort of each motor vehicle operator is the answer to prevention of death in traffic, according to Governor Frank P. Merriam of California, in a recent statement.

"Recognizing this fact brings us to the realization that only one rule can be laid down to eliminate the appalling toll of death rampant on the highways," said the Governor. "An adaptation of the Golden Rule to the operation of motor vehicles will solve the problem. Drive as you would have others drive."

"In California, as in practically every state in the union, the motorizing public shows a sincere desire to follow the commendable campaigns of newspapers, radio stations, individuals and organizations.

"To coordinate and officially assist California in its individual efforts to bring about sane and decent driving, we have authorized the State Director of Motor Vehicles to lead a state-wide program of safety councils. He will be assisted by an executive council of authorities on vehicle operation and an advisory council of editors and road station operators.

"California is determined to drive death and injury from its highways by helping its citizens to drive as they would have others drive."

GOODRICH ENTERS MARINER'S FIELD

Extension of its line of storage batteries into the marine field was announced recently by The B. F. Goodrich Company, Orval Lyon, local storage manager through Goodrich, is offering its smart "Electro-Pak" type of battery to this field believing one of its most distinctive features, the exclusive top cover, will make it extremely popular with motor boat owners and operators.

The "Electro-Pak" battery is the only line in the country with this top cover, which not only saves power, but covers all exposed metal parts of the battery and protects against destructive spray, dirt and corrosion. It also prevents metal objects from falling on the terminals of the battery, causing short circuits, and prevents any damage to clothing which might be caused with contact to exposed surfaces.

Wrightwood-Park Road Ready Soon

Expected to be ready for use by the Fourth of July is the new branch road to Wrightwood and Big Pine County Park from the summit of Cajon-Lancaster road, the Automobile Club of Southern California advises. Oil mix surfacing is being applied from the summit to Sheep Creek. Some construction work remains beyond Sheep Creek, including a concrete bridge being completed.

This spur highway which eventu-

No Alibis Taken By Laguna Chief

Strict enforcement of boulevard stop and new one-hour parking ordinances is in order in Laguna Beach, motorists are advised by the Automobile Club of Southern California. Street traffic is particularly heavy in that vacation community, and motorists are said to have been lax in obeying these regulations.

"No alibi will be considered," Chief of Police Abe Johnson is quoted. "I know them all and am tired of them. If drivers don't want tickets, they must observe the parking restrictions or they will assuredly pay fines. Running boulevard stops will not be tolerated."

QUIET MOTORS

Just because your late model car is quiet at high speeds is no justification for racing it when under load. Tremendous forces are developed quickly in modern engines and they tend to work destructively on the power plant itself when they have no more useful work to do.

HINTS ON CARBURETORS

Carburetors can be made to supply safe mixtures or dangerous ones. The carburetor should be adjusted so that stepping on the accelerator will make the car "jump" out of danger. If stepping on the gas chokes the motor and causes it to slow down, it is as dangerous as brakes that fail.

ally will be a link in the transmountain route between La Canada and Azusa and the desert is of substantial construction.

Tire Makers Add De-Skid Safety Plan

Greater control of an automobile is obtained through development of the U. S. Royal Master tire with its amazing narrow rib and de-skidded features, according to Jerry Hall, Santa Ana's tire dealer, at Second and Main.

"A recent study of highway accident statistics reveals that lack of control induced by quick emergency stops, by negotiating a curve, or by passing another car in such a manner as to produce a side skid, is responsible for many more accidents than official records show," Jerry Hall said.

"Records of accidents seldom reveal the contributory causes," Jerry Hall continued. "This is particularly true where skidding occurs. The driver will generally attempt to avert an accident by swerving sharply or by suddenly applying the brakes, and the result is a bad skid, out-of-control. The report, however, would list only the cause which created the emergency."

"So well did the 'U. S.' engineers succeed that the U. S. Royal Master with Centipede Grip is rapidly becoming the antidisk standard of comparison for the industry. This tire provides the driver with a sureness of car control heretofore unknown. It will stop a car in two-thirds the distance required by any ordinary antidisk tire on roads of the worst type. It stops the car without changing its direction of travel. When passing a car on wet slippery roads, it shows its great superiority, for it will take a curve up to 20 per cent faster than conventional tires."

MAKE TRIPS SAFE ADVISES SEBELLE

Vacation-minded persons must be reminded frequently that safety is the most commendable part of motor-car traveling, according to W. T. Sebelie, manager of Good-year Service, 200 South Main street.

"An automobile is as safe as its equipment and tires come close to heading the list," said Sebelie. "People who plan vacation trips must bear in mind that weak tires will not stand the wear and tear of twisting, rambling country roads nor can they cope with the heat of hard-surface roads at high speeds."

"Furthermore, a vacationist who experiences annoying delays due to punctures or blowouts, will be unable to keep on schedule to cover the points of interest planned. Since time is such an essential element, it is wise to take every precaution so that a well planned vacation will prove a pleasure and not a series of tire delays."

"New tires, such as the 1936 Goodyear Blue Ribbon offered in the G-3 All-Weather or the famous Double Eagle are real safety insurance that costs little per mile," Sebelie concluded.

CAR SALES STORY RELATES OPTIMISM

Passenger car sales on the Pacific Coast in May showed a 41 per cent increase over sales of May, 1935, while sales for the first five months of this year were up 34 per cent from the corresponding period of 1935, complete figures revealed by Associated Oil company from California, Oregon and Washington, show.

In the three states, May sales this year were 32,355, as against 22,932 in May, 1935. Sales from January 1st to May 31st were 143,739, compared with 107,491 in that period of last year.

"Most remarkable was the May sales record in the State of Washington," the report stated. "There sales were 103 per cent up from May of 1935. Oregon showed an increase of 82 per cent, and California 25 per cent. This certainly indicates that the upward trend

MOTOR TRAVEL IN FOREIGN COUNTRIES IS ON INCREASE

Motor vacationing outside of the United States is running more than 50 per cent above last year's figure and is three times greater than the 1933 volume, according to the American Automobile association today.

The A. A. A.'s statement was based on a report made by E. G. Sparrow, who represents the national touring body on the International Touring association and the Association of Internationally Recognized Automobile clubs. Sparrow, whose headquarters are in Paris, came to the United States to participate in recent meetings of the A. A. A.'s executive committee and national touring board and advisory committee. Principal representative of the A. A. A. abroad, he is a member of the A. A. A. international competitions and international relations committees, and is regarded as an outstanding expert on the currents of world travel.

Sparrow told these two groups that predictions made early in the year of a record-smashing foreign travel season are being more than fulfilled and that maintenance of present levels for the remainder of 1936 would establish a new high record in the number of Americans shipping their cars across the ocean for foreign touring.

"Never before," the A. A. A. foreign representative declared, "have European governments offered so many facilities and inducements

Indianapolis Race More Than Sports Event, Says Rohde

Did the Indianapolis 500-mile race play any useful part in automotive progress? That is a question answered this week with an emphatic affirmative by O. C. Rohde, chief engineer of Champion Spark Plug company.

"Gasoline restriction having been cut to 37 1/2 gallons, it was necessary for the drivers to average nearly 14 miles to the gallon to be able to finish the race," he pointed out. "At speeds well over a hundred miles an hour such economy is quite phenomenal."

"The fact that Louis Meyer, the winner, set a new all-time track record of 109.063 miles per hour and finished with a little gas to spare proves conclusively that speed and economy are reconcilable."

SERVE 59 YEARS

which began in November of 1934 is still underway, with no sign of abating."

WATCH OUT FOR CHILDREN WHEN YOU BACK AUTO

Many a child's life may be in jeopardy if you back your car without looking behind you, safety engineers advised today. "Look where you back and back where you look," they declared.

This is especially necessary when backing out of an alley or driveway. Children are frequent victims in backing out of home garages. The little tots on their scooters or roller skates may not know your plans. In the excitement of play they forget about caution. Youthful pedestrians, however, are not the only victims, many motorists, too, fail to notice that the car ahead is backing. Sometime ago a truck driver's helper, whose duties included watching the rear when backing, was himself caught and crushed when his driver backed into a loading station.

And, of course, there are a great many cases where drivers misjudge distance in turning on narrow roads. Many parking accidents are caused when the car is in reverse, also.

In backing out of a blind alley, make it a rule to stop just before going over the sidewalk and then sound your horn.

Remember, one can back into trouble much easier than he can back out of it.

The River Rhone is regarded as the swiftest in the world, attaining in certain parts a velocity of 40 miles an hour.

VALUE OF TOURIST BUSINESS TO COUNTY EXTOLLED DURING MEETING OF ASSOCIATED C. C.

Charles Horrorth, executive of the All Year Club of California, talked about the value of the tourist business to the state to about 50 representatives of the cities and towns of Orange county at the meeting of the County Chamber of Commerce at the Golden Bear cafe in Huntington Beach last night. He stressed the condition that exists in Southern California where there has been created and developed water supply and electric supply for four million to six million population with only about three million population to care for.

The speaker offered a proper encouragement for tourist travel and its resultant assurance of an increased permanent resident or population increase as the most obvious and certain opportunity to create a demand for what surplus we have to give.

He cited the favorable opportunity open to Orange county to attract tourists and told of literature and advertising originating and distributed by the All Year club bearing on Orange county for which the county paid not one cent. He recited how the All Year club had the Dallas exposition in Texas and large tourist campaigns in the South Atlantic states, Georgia, Florida and the Carolinas to combat this year and how the fight was being carried on. The ular fund had slowly dwindled. Assemblyman Ted Craig suggested that a part of the racing tax money received by the state from the race tracks might properly be spent through such agencies as the All Year club and predicted that such a plan would be brought before the next legislative session.

Assemblyman James Utt, told of the fight at Sacramento to prevent the plan now in force of allowing county supervisors to spend money for advertising, from being revoked. He also urged and advocated the taking advantage of the power of intelligent advertising of California attractions for tourists.

Dr. C. G. Huston of Costa Mesa, president of the county chamber presided at the meeting. Secretary May read the minutes of the last meeting and proposed changes in the constitution were unanimously adopted. Two changes concerned the reduction from 28 days to 18 days of time that action could be taken on a referendum vote by the chamber. A resolution was adopted opposing the repeal of the sales tax and the substitution of the single tax, which is known as the single tax measure, but the title of which is misleading in that the act is entitled "repeal of the sales tax." This matter is to be voted on at the coming election. The county chamber urged a "no" vote on the proposed act. President Huston named George Kellogg and Roy Peacock a committee to carry on the fight for the County Chamber of Commerce.

Willis Warner, mayor of Huntington Beach, welcomed the delegates on behalf of the city and sol. White welcomed them on behalf of the local Chamber of Commerce. Will H. Gallienne, secretary of the local chamber, extended an invitation to all present to enjoy the Fourth of July program here extending over a three-day period, July 3, 4 and 5.

ALWAYS SOUND HORN

When passing another car it is advisable to sound the horn even if the other driver appears to know that a car is about to pass.

Some motorists have a habit of swerving from one side of the road to the other, and it may just happen that such a driver turns to his own side of the road at a time when you think he is getting out of your way, states L. G. Evans, General Service Manager of the National Automobile Club. Unless the horn is sounded the chances are that he will begin to swerve to the other side, or at least toward the center, before you overtake him.

JIMMY FIDLER in — HOLLYWOOD —

HOLLYWOOD, July 1.—Doubtless many who read this will also have read highly colored descriptions of studio projection room previews and will have decided that these secretive affairs are most exciting. I must be disillusioning to the point of being brutal, then, when I report to you that projection room previews are distinctly boring, disappointing, cold and unglamorous. Add your own synonymous adjectives ad infinitum.

Pictures flashed on projection room screens are generally unfinished, roughly cut and often incompletely synchronized. Most projection rooms have only a few comfortable chairs (trust studio executives to guard their own comfort), in front of which are rows of hard, straight-backed seats. Floors are not sloping, as in theaters, so those behind the first two rows must strain and crane to see the screen, and woe betide the little fellow who happens to be seated behind a biggie. Of course, the few comfortable chairs are reserved for studio officials, stars and important columnists and editors. First come, first served with the balance of the seats.

There is no theatrical environment to lend enchantment, nothing to lessen the coldness of the projection room's four blank walls and unadorned screen. There are no Mickey Mouses or Movietone Newsreels to build up to the feature picture. The audience files in, sits, and without further ado the picture is shown. Let other columnists fool you with their rosy-hued paintings of projection room fun. I tell you that they are no fun, and if you please, I prefer my screen fare in theaters, where I may sleep if I don't like it.

Jane Withers is the fastest thinking youngster I have ever known. She has an answer to everything. Not long ago Jane was honor guest at a Policemen's Benefit ball. As she and her mother strolled their way to the affair, in a police car, all traffic made way for them. They streamed right through a traffic signal by reason of this right-of-way, whereupon wide-eyed Jane cried, "Mother, that's the first time we ever went through a red light without getting a ticket!" Suddenly remembering the police lieutenant who rode with them, she hastily added, "Not that we ever rode through a red light."

VACATION DRIVING

June and July call for extreme care in driving a car, particularly on city streets, points out the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California. Schools are closed; streets are crowded with children at play; the vacation season is in full swing and more cars are on the road. This unusual situation makes for an upward trend in traffic deaths and injuries.

According to a tradition attached to the Hope diamond, it will bring misfortune to its possessor.

Santa Ana Postoffice Ranks 320th In Entire Nation

RECEIPTS FOR YEAR OF 1935 SET LIMIT ON FARMER LOANS IN SOIL PLAN

Santa Ana ranks 320th of all the postoffices in the country in total amount of receipts, it was learned today as the postoffice department made public the figures on which the $3700 salary of the Santa Ana postmaster for the fiscal year starting July first is based.

One of 76 first class postoffices in the $3700 salary class, Santa Ana took in $149,983 during the year ending December 31, 1935, from sale of stamps, money orders, and registration fees, but not including money on deposit in postal savings. Santa Ana was the highest ranking postoffice in the $3700 salary class and the lowest is Lorain, Ohio, with receipts of $120,103.

Los Angeles was the highest ranking California postoffice. The lowest ranking first class postoffice in the state which ranked 1944 in the entire country was Santa Maria, which is in the $3200 salary class and which had receipts of $10,709.

LOCAL WOMAN IS SERIOUSLY HURT IN CRASH

Mrs. A. W. Rimel, 931 South Ross street, Santa Ana, is confined in the Salem General Hospital, Salem, Oregon, today as the result of severe injuries sustained last Saturday in a traffic accident. Mrs. Rimel, her husband and her daughter, Miss Ruth Rimel, were enroute to Santa Ana from Portland when the accident occurred a short distance south of Salem.

Word of the accident was received today by Jack Rimel, Santa Ana attorney, in a letter from relatives in Portland. The letter gave no detail of the accident, other than to say that Mrs. Rimel sustained a fractured pelvis and other injuries. She will be confined in the hospital for at least three weeks. Mr. Rimel and Miss Rimel were injured in the crash, but were released from the hospital yesterday.

The Rimels left Santa Ana June 12 on a motor trip to Oregon. They visited with Mrs. Rimel's sister, Mrs. J. F. Dunlap in Portland, and were on their way to Corvallis to visit another relative when the accident occurred.

This Will Be a San Francisco Gateway Next Fall

Here's one way automobiles and trains will enter San Francisco after Nov. 12, when the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge is completed. Costing over 77 million dollars and over eight miles long, it is the world's largest span, built by the state under the California Toll Bridge Authority. Photo from one of the gigantic towers shows the upper deck, being paved, and in the distance, the San Francisco waterfront and downtown business section. The upper deck will carry six lanes of automobiles; the lower, three truck lanes and two interurban train tracks.

TIPPLER SETS HIGH RECORD FOR ARRESTS

"I must have slipped," was the simple manner Alger L. "Dolly" Gray, 51, of 609 McFadden street, Santa Ana, had yesterday afternoon of telling Justice Kenneth Morrison that he had not stayed on the "water wagon" after promising to do so. It was the thirty-eighth time since November 14, 1924, that Dolly has faced charges of being intoxicated here.

Just before Judge Morrison left for a two weeks' vacation in Oregon, Dolly appeared before him and was sentenced to spend next Christmas in Orange county jail. Such a sentence is anything but a novelty for Dolly. He's expecting to spend his ninth straight Christmas in jail on December 25, 1936!

Sentenced to Jail

Judge Morrison, following the arrest of Gray, well-known barber here, Monday night by Santa Ana police, sentenced him to six months in jail when he pleaded guilty. Then the judge looked up the record and saw where another six months' sentence had been suspended, but the court decided Dolly had violated terms of the suspended sentence and added that to the other six months. "It will be one year," the judge told Dolly, and Dolly didn't seem disappointed.

Records show Gray was arrested Thursday, June 18, by local police, for being drunk, and that the judge held in abeyance, a six months' sentence with the proviso that Dolly refrain from using liquor for two years. Dolly, at that time, promised faithfully, he would not touch liquor for the two-year period. That's why he said yesterday, "I must have slipped."

Record Established

According to a record compiled by Deputy District Attorney Clarence Sprague, Dolly has been arrested 41 times since that date in November, 1924. Once he was assertedly convicted of petty theft because he helped himself to a bottle of hair tonic when extremely thirsty and a bottle of bourbon was not available. Twice Dolly was arrested for disturbing the peace; once he was arrested for vagrancy. He has been treated at two state institutions, following other arrests. And once he was found not guilty of being intoxicated—that was on October 2, 1929.

Dolly always takes it philosophically. On June 19, he told officials he guessed he'd have to do his drinking outside of Orange county.

Regular customer of the county jail, Dolly knows almost as much "inside information" of the jail as himself.

In 1750, Massachusetts passed laws prohibiting theatrical entertainment of any description. Nine years later, it imposed a fine of 500 pounds for violation of the laws.

To Miss Roehm

Mrs. Al Adrain, treasurer, and Mrs. John Garthe, star point Martha of Santa Ana chapter O. E. S., entertained officers and their "trailers" last night at a bridge party in the Adrain home, 808 South Garnsey street.

Miss Elizabeth Roehm, whose marriage to Lieut. Godfrey Speich will take place Sunday afternoon, July 5, at 2 o'clock in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Roehm, at Tustin, was presented with a wedding gift from officers of the chapter.

Cards were played with the result that Miss Roehm and Don C. Edwards won prizes for scoring high. Mrs. Paul Cozad and Glenn Lyman were consoled.

The hostesses served refreshments at the close of the evening, when decorations gave emphasis to a patriotic motif.

It was suggested that little Miss Dorothy Irene Shaw, daughter of Mrs. Anna Shaw of Fullerton, be named mascot of the organization. She was born June 10.

Miss Margaret Schauer assisted her mother in entertaining. Guests, in addition to the Santa Ana trip were Mesdames Florence Williams, Newark; Anna Shaw, Gladys Wel-

Home From Orient

Home from the Orient, where they vacationed for two and a half months, Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Ferrey, 320 Main street, Tustin, expect to spend a quiet summer in the Southland. They returned on the N. Y. K. liner, Taiyo Maru, the same ship on which Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Smith, 1717 North Broadway, made their homeward voyage after a Japan-China trip.

The Ferreys traveled in company with former Santa Anas, Mr. and Mrs. Meredith J. House of Los Angeles, sailing from Wilmington April 1 on the Danish liner, the Anna Maersk. They made a direct trip to Yokohama. Various points of interest in Japan, China and Korea were visited by the Santa Anas.

En route home, the Taiyo Maru made a day's stop at Honolulu. Immediately after their return Mr. and Mrs. Ferrey were joined by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Williams of Los Angeles, in a trip to Berkeley for the marriage of Miss Mary Bruner and Fred Gilbert Ferrey.

Emma Williams
Is Married At
Whittier Rites

Much interest has been aroused in this city by announcement of the marriage on Saturday night, June 26, in Whittier, of Miss Emma Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Williams, 422 South Flower street, and William J. Mohler, of Whittier, son of Lee T. Mohler, of Santa Ana.

The young people chose to maintain extreme simplicity in the rites which were conducted by the Rev. Reno Jeske, at the altar of Whittier Lutheran church, of which he is pastor. Miss Williams wore a smart costume of white crepe with tulle jacket in navy blue, a tone repeated by her hat, gloves and slippers. Her shoulder corsage bouquet was of gardenias with pink roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Walker of Whittier served as best man and matron of honor, roles which they filled with special interest because they had taken their wedding vows in the same church just a year ago. Mrs. Walker wore a soft gray ensemble costume with white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. James Brackett, of Pasadena, were the only remaining guests. Mrs. Brackett was Miss Bertha Williams, sister of the bride. She was gown in pink and wore pink and white sweet peas.

Following the wedding, the six young people motored to Los Angeles for a wedding dinner at Lucca's. The new Mr. and Mrs. Mohler have deferred honeymoon plans until later in the summer, and are now receiving friends at 129 North Clementine street, Anaheim.

Mrs. Mohler is continuing her duties as assistant manager of the Anaheim branch of the Van de Kamp bakery. She has been prominent in the city's artist circles as a reader, having had training after her high school days under Holly Lash Visel, and has just completed a course under Marta Oatman in Hollywood. She is one of several Santa Ana artists to have gone on the famous Santa Fe entertainment tours.

Mr. Mohler had his school work in Portland and is now a draftsman with the United Auto Body works of Whittier.

Berkeley Activities

Miss Vena Jones, Orange school nurse and member of the public health nursing staff of Orange County Health department, is enjoying the varied activities offered to residents at the International House on the Berkeley campus of University of California, according to word received by friends.

Since early May Miss Jones has been taking a course in the Western School of Public Health for the Pacific coast, conducted by the university. She plans to continue her studies through the summer.

Recently she had the honor of assisting as hostess at a five o'clock tea when Alan Blaisdell, director, and Mrs. Blaisdell received as guests a number of members of the Mills College Institute of International Relations, now in session. Many of the 400 summer residents were welcomed to the affair. Dr. Y. Y. Teu of Shanghai, China, was principal speaker on that occasion.

Famous Personalities
Among Guests
At Harbor Yacht Club

Probably the greatest drawing card to Orange county for famous and near-famous folk of the world, lies in Newport Harbor Yacht club, whose informal summer social season is always anticipated by yachtsmen and their families, as one of the most pleasant on the Pacific coast.

Prominent in affairs of the club has been Jascha Heifitz, perhaps the world's greatest living violinist, who has now taken a beach cottage for the remainder of the summer. Equally famous in a different line is Paul Howard, recognized internationally as an outstanding horticulturist. He and his family are yacht club guests.

On Friday, July 3, the club is launching its summer series of weekly bridge luncheon for members of the "rocking chair fleet" and their friends. These summer affairs are always enjoyable, and those fortunate enough to attend them always retain memories of the delight of playing bridge on the deck, with the obligato of the splashing waters of the bay and the unending pageantry of swift pleasure craft.

On Saturday night, celebration of the glorious Fourth will culminate with a patriotic dinner danced at which an unusually large crowd is expected. The summer regatta season with its manifold sailing events, will be at its very height from now on.

De Molays Stage Party
At Dr. Horton Home

Santa Ana chapter De Molay members and council's only were admitted to the stag party held last night at the home of Dr. Roy S. Horton, 315 Cypress avenue. More than 50 guests took part in events of the evening.

The outdoor grill was utilized in cooking meat for the sandwiches which were served with potato salad, watermelon and other picnic favorites. Mothers' Council members had provided some of the food for the group. Shelley Horton was general chairman of arrangements.

Advisory council members present were Plummer Bruns, chairman; Dr. Horton, advisor, and Glenn Lyman, George Wheeler, Courtney Chandler, Dick Bradley, E. U. Farmer and Gregg Watson.

The group went to the Rendezvous for dancing later in the evening, joining members of Fullerton De Molay for this feature.

Quite charming flower arrangements were used on the two luncheon tables. On one was a bewildering mass of color from bright summer flowers from the George S. Briggs garden, accented by a blue mirror on which a handsome cut crystal bowl held silver wrapped bonbons. Gladioluses in their green sheaths, formed the decorative motif for the second table.

Four guests were invited to join the club group for the hospitality. Mrs. James Irvine, Mrs. Irwin Landis, Mrs. Jerry Macomber of Fullerton, and Mrs. John Scripps. One club member was absent, Mrs. R. C. Hoiles, now on a summer visit in Ohio. Present with the hostesses, were Mrs. West and Mrs. Timmons, were Mesdames Marguerite D. Borgmeyer, Leonard G. Swales, H. B. Van Dien, Benjamin J. MacMullen, H. T. Dunning, Sarah Johnston Haddon, Ray Chandler, Howard Rapp and W. A. Flood.

First and second high scores in contract were made by Mrs. Dunning and Mrs. Haddon.

The serving of a buffet supper brought the pleasant evening to a close. Those present in addition to Miss Tubach and Miss McGilvray were Miss Irene Schooley, Miss Berta Gregg, Doral Kingrey, Sam Hill, Bill Knight, Paul Simmons, and the honor guest, Bob Andrews.

La Habra Luncheon

Three prominent members of Santa Ana Legion auxiliary were in La Habra yesterday for a luncheon given by Mrs. Marjorie Peabody, 21st district president of Legion auxiliary.

In the local group were Mrs. Ralph Hoover, president of Santa Ana unit; Mrs. A. C. Eklund, district rehabilitation chairman; Mrs. D. M. Jellis, district drill team chairman and district sergeant-at-arms. Mrs. Eklund won one of the prizes in afternoon card play.

Dessert Bridge Event

Clever Spanish tattles were distributed for bridge play yesterday afternoon when Miss Charlene Lowell entertained club members in her home, 926 North Olive street.

Dessert was served to precede card play in which Mrs. George Bradley and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy scored first and second high. Others present were Miss Loretta Spangler, Mrs. Bruce Harding, Mrs. Joseph Irwin, Miss Lowell and two guests, Mrs. Gilbert Meisinger and Miss Marcella Huber.

Wedding Held
In "Wee Kirk"

Close family friends of Mrs. Frances Morris, 1067 West Third street, who have been privileged to meet Miss Henrietta Ruth Clark, of San Bernardino, charming fiancée of her son, Ralph Elgin Morris also of the Gate City, will be interested in details of the young couple's wedding Monday night in Glendale's Wee Kirk of the Heather.

It was a formal ceremony at which the Rev. William Hodgson, pastor of Glendale M. E. church, presided after a short organ recital by Roland Diggle and the solos, "I Love You Truly" and "Always," sung by C. Jack Boone.

Miss Clark, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Clark, of San Bernardino, was given by her father in marriage. She chose for her bridal costume, a beautifully designed gown of ivory satin sweeping in a circular train. Her veil was of shoulder length, falling over her face from a tiny tulle cap. She carried white roses and bouvardia.

Gowns worn by her attendants were in delicate flower hues. Mrs. Harold Butler as matron of honor, was in pink chiffon with jacket to match, and carried Briarcliff roses and dephiniums. Miss Kay Berry in yellow net over taffeta, carrying lavender sweet peas, and Miss Lela Gilliland in a similar costume in turquoise blue with pink sweet peas, were bridesmaids. All three wore smart little off-the-face hats in maine to match their frocks.

Mr. Morris had three assistants, Messrs. W. Kenneth Lamb as best man, Corwin Frazee and Ford Underwood, ushers.

Guests to the number of 150 or more, later assembled in Glendale Masonic temple lounge where the new Mr. and Mrs. Morris and their attendants were in the receiving line with Mrs. Morris of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Clark. Later the young people left by automobile for a northern California honeymoon, from which they will return to their new address, 969 F street, San Bernardino.

Mr. Morris, who is a graduate of Tustin High school, is with the General Petroleum company in San Bernardino. His bride, a graduate of San Bernardino High school, where she was affiliated with Omega Gamma Kappa, is head of the sportswear department and assistant buyer in the principal department store of the Gate City.

Miss Doris Welles
Enjoys Vacation

Miss Doris Welles, 709 Minter street, who is home on furlough from her missionary work in India, left this week in company with Miss Dorothy Clarkson of this city for the San Bernardino mountains, where they will spend the next month.

The mission worker returned Saturday from Methodist Standard Bearers' Camp Radford above Redlands, where she was one of the counselors. The Misses Joy Townsley and Marguerite Davies of this city were among those in attendance.

Miss Welles will leave in the fall for Calcutta where she will resume her work on the mission field.

Leave for Canada

They will be accompanied by Mrs. Smith's sister, Miss Preble Drake, and will spend the remainder of the summer at their island home.

Columbus put in at the West Indies, and thereby discovered America, but it remained for the "Food Magician," nearly 500 years later, to discover the culinary tricks of the islands. Events always exciting to American youths are to be staged for them all over the country when the annual marble tournament to decide the nation's champion "agile" knuckle-downer is described from Ocean City, N. Ice Cream Roll

Bake a thin sheet of cake, using your favorite recipe for jelly roll. When cool enough to handle, turn on a tea towel, cut off the crisp edges and roll the cake. Be sure it is perfectly cool before using. At service time, unroll, place about a quart of ice cream in the center of the cake and roll lightly. Ice cream that is packed in a round container is very easy to handle, but spoon-rolls will do nicely. Surround the ice cream roll with sweetened strawberries or sliced peaches, or serve with a marshmallow mist or maple sauce.

THE TWINYMITES

King Sun could really run real fast. The Moon chased him until at last, he disappeared inside the palace. All the Twinymites smiled. Then Princess Sunshine said, "Now he is just as happy as can be. Why, if he couldn't shine to-night, I know 'twould make him wild."

"I'm really glad that dad can rest, because I know for him it's best. He never will admit it, but he often gets tired out. "To shine all day is not much fun. Why, it would tire out anyone. By this time he's in bed and sound asleep, without a doubt."

Then old King Moon said, "Shortly, you're going to see just lots and lots of moonlight overhead. I am a real full moon tonight. "A lot of stars you'll also see. They'll come to keep me company. I hope that you enjoy yourselves beneath my silvery light."

A half an hour passed by and then, fair Dotty said, "How pretty," when the moon perched on the ladder top and flashed out streaks of white. Said Copsy, "I would like to sit all night and simply gaze at it." But Goidy said, "Oh, not for me. I'm going to sleep tonight."

"Let's flop down near a great big tree. 'Twill be as comfy as can be. Just then a little man appeared and cried, "That's very wise."

"I am the Sandman. Yes, stree. Of course you all have heard of me. As soon as you flop down I'll help you close your little eyes."

The work was begun early last fall as a PWA project at an estimated cost of $185,000. When completed it will eliminate one of the most dangerous highway intersections in the state, it is believed by traffic officers.

The fill of the main grade and the four causeways leading up to it from both sides are completed and ready to receive the concrete pavement. The concrete floor extending over the main archway has been poured and the roadside curbs are in place. The concrete pouring crew is at present running the floor of the bridge over an arm of Newport bay immediately south of the main span and workmen are erecting forms for the sidewalks of the main span.

A two-lane passage will be open under the main arch over the State highway and the bridge over the bay channel will be raised considerably above that of the old Newport boulevard crossing, facilitating the passage of larger boats into the west bay than was possible previously.

The Mundo Construction company, of Los Angeles, has the contract for the job.

Cleaning of the premises preparatory to erection of a new derrick started yesterday and the well will be drilled below 3000 feet. It is already 7300 feet deep. It is reported. Michigan capital is said to be interested in the project.

This well is in a line with the supposed structure extending from Five Points on a line with the new Shell Oil company well. ### CHAPTER I

IT was a week after her father's funeral. Claire Fosdick stood in the luxuriously furnished library and looked about her with a shudder. Almost as though she half expected some menacing horror to reach out from the familiar shadows and clutch her. Then she jerked herself together with an effort. Over there, by his favorite lamp, his body had been found, slumped forward in an unnatural, twisted position. She could see it yet, though she had tried to forget. The death certificate had said heart trouble, and there had been no autopsy. Nick Baum had managed that for her. But always in the back of Claire's mind would be the question—why had her father died so unexpectedly? He had seemed as well as usual when she bade him goodnight and left him chatting with Nick. And Nick had said that when he left at 11 o'clock Mr. Fosdick walked to the door with him and seemed in the best of spirits. Yet he was gone, and now Claire was alone with the wreck of the family fortune. This city house and the mountain property were about all that was left, and she knew only too well that Nick Baum had claims on both. Her father's words came back to her.

"We must pay Nick by this time next month, Daughter."

"But, Daddy," she had exclaimed. "Surely Nick will—"

"You don't understand, child. Nick has been more than lenient. I couldn't ask him to extend the time again. We've got to find the money somehow."

But how? Wearily Claire inventoried again her chances of supplying a large sum of money in a limited space of time. Trained for nothing but a society life, lacking money that seemed as far distant as the snow-capped mountain peaks, what could she do?

As though in answer to her problem, the door behind her opened and a tall young man came eagerly toward her and took both her cold hands in his.

"Nick! I—I didn't know you were here. I didn't hear you come in."

"Because I came through the garden. Cut across from the garage. The maid opened the French window for me. Are you glad to see me, Claire?"

He kissed her fingers as he spoke, then stood looking down at her, his flashing dark eyes admiring every line of her. "You're prettier every time I see you."

THE girl freed her hands with an uneasy little gesture. "Of course I'm always glad to see you, Nick," she answered. "You've been awfully good to me. I don't know how I could have gone through everything without you, Claire, crashing a delicate Dresden figure to the floor. It lay shattered into bits. She gazed down at it dazedly. It was like her own world—the world that had always been so beautiful and safe. Smashed into broken pieces.

"I was just thinking of the jewel, Hannah," Claire said. "Oh, if I could only find it! Everything would be all right."

"But what, Claire?" he persisted. "You know I'm crazy about you and want you to marry me. Why won't you say you will? You're the loveliest girl I've ever known—and the coldest. Can't you like me a little, dearest?"

Claire looked regretfully at him. Certainly he seemed everything a girl could desire, as he stood there pleading with her. Handsome, young and ardent. Yes, she was a fool, yet—

"I do like you a lot, Nick," Her voice was sincere. "I like you but—oh, don't ask me now. I don't know—I'm—I'm so uncertain about everything. I'm going up to the mountain house for a few days. Maybe when I come back—maybe later, Nick, dear—please!"

With a choked sob she turned and ran into the hall and upstairs to her own room. Crumpling in a heap before her dressing table, she pressed small, clenched fists to her cheeks. "I can't! I just can't! I must find some other way out." The words ended in tears.

"Claire, honey!" An elderly maid's startled face appeared around an open closet door. She hurried to the girl and put her arms about her.

"Tell Hannah all about it now, child." She smoothed Claire's rumpled curls as she had done years before when she was nurse to the motherless little girl. "Any-one been pesterin' you?" She poked her cap to a belligerent angle, her seamed, weather-beaten face glared defiance.

Claire laughed shakily. Drawing Hannah's head down, she kissed her. "Don't frown so thickly, old dear. Anyone would think you were still fighting Apaches out on your ranch in the early days. Some scrapper yet, aren't you?"

Hannah nodded. "You said it, honey. I am when anyone goes tryin' to drop a loop over you if you ain't willin'." Go on now, tell me. Is it that Baum fellow again?"

"Yes," Claire answered slowly. "He's awfully nice and he loves me, but—"

"But you don't want to marry him." Hannah finished the sentence for her. "Well then, you don't have to."

"But I know Daddy hoped I would, Hannah. Nick was very close to him, had even loaned him a lot of money, and we can't pay it back."

"Listen, child," Hannah broke in. "Your father was the best man in the world, bar none, but just because he was so darn good himself, he was a mere babe in arms when it came to some other things. Now you've got your own life to live, and he's gone. It's all bosh 'bout tied up by dead folks' wishes. Nobody oughter try to run the affairs of the living from the grave. How about tryin' to unearth that blasted jewel your Uncle Lyman said he hid in the house in the mountains? Wouldn't that help, Claire?"

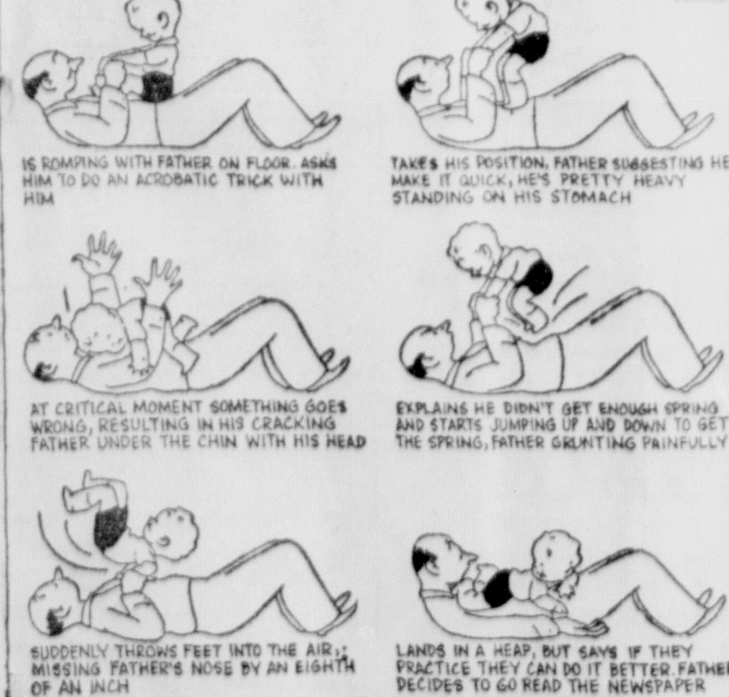

"I was just thinking of that, Hannah," Claire looked up eagerly. "Oh, if I could only find it! But we've gone over every inch of the place hundreds of times. Daddy had about decided it was just Uncle Lyman's delirium when he was dying. You couldn't tell us where it was. But if there really was a jewel, and I could find it, everything would be all right. I could pay Nick and—"

"Then your father didn't know whether he got all your uncle's jewels or not?"

"We've never been sure, Hannah. You know Uncle had some wonderful stones. He was an authority on such things and bought them all over the world on his various travels. But he was always boasting about his 'Jewel of the Rockies,' as he called it. Said it was hidden in the house, and that we must never let the place go out of our possession. But after we looked and looked without finding anything, we weren't sure whether it was just a fancy or not. You know Uncle was dreadfully eccentric."

WHAT PRICE FOURTH OF JULY

Casualty statistics reveal a decreasing number of accidents as a result of years of propaganda for a "Safe and Sane Fourth of July." When we recall the noisy, unsafe and insane celebrations of a generation ago, we must admit civilization has made considerable progress at least in ways and means of glorifying the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Nearly every adult must remember one or two glaring instances where some childhood pal made the supreme sacrifice of either his life or having his body deformed permanently as a result of Fourth of July burns or explosions.

We call ourselves civilized but I fail to see anything civilized in a practice that takes the life of a child, or even cripples a child.

We have an ordinance in the city of Santa Ana that prohibits the shooting of fireworks within the city limits.

But, we encourage the shooting of fireworks by permitting the sale of them within the confines of the city.

Could anything be more incongruous?

We can celebrate the Fourth of July in a more fitting manner than by shooting fireworks. Christmas, Thanksgiving, Labor Day, and Memorial Day are fittingly observed without the firing of guns, pistols and firecrackers.

Industry has long recognized the necessity of educating employees and providing safety devices which reduce to a minimum the accidents peculiar to any given employment. If industry has proven the economic necessity of accident prevention among employees, is it not a reflection on our civilization if we neglect to throw up similar and perhaps more rigid safeguards for our children?

As long as fireworks are sold to children, and to adults, there will be accidents. As long as this heathenish practice on the Fourth of July is continued there will be accidents.

So why not abolish both the sale and shooting off of fireworks, not only in Santa Ana, but also Orange County?

It may be years before the entire nation follows suit, but we at least can start it here and I will make an effort before another Fourth of July rolls around to encourage the adoption of an ordinance prohibiting the sale of fireworks in Santa Ana.

WAR MUST BE FEARED FOR ITS UPHEAVALS

When people say that another great war would "wreck European civilization," what do they mean?

Stanley Baldwin, prime minister of Great Britain, can tell you. In a recent address in Scotland, Mr. Baldwin had this to say about the war menace that hangs over Europe:

"If that fire is ever lighted again on the continent, no man can tell whether the heather will stop burning, and it is not a risk that I, for one, am going to take for my country so long as I have any control in the government."

"I believe that the perils of another modern war in Europe must lead to a revolt of all peoples against their rulers, and you might soon find Europe in a state of complete and barbarous anarchy from end to end."

In that one sentence Mr. Baldwin paints a picture such as this earth has not had to look at in all its history. And a little reflection on the aftermath of the last war should convince anyone that its dark colors are justified.

The last war sent Russia into anarchy, and from 1918 to 1920 or 1921 Russia gave about as faithful a representation of hell on earth as the sun has ever looked down upon.

The other countries managed to miss that fate—but they didn't miss it by very much. Only by reading the detailed histories of that period can one realize how frighteningly close the rest of Europe came to following in the same path.

Why did that happen? Why did the most populous nation in Europe suddenly revert to the savagery, the confusion, the pain, and the hunger of the Dark Ages, so that the deaths of its people in the reconstruction period had to be numbered in the millions?

The answer is inescapable. The war made the Russians desperate; it gave them the terrible feeling that no change could possibly be for the worse, that their rulers had been guilty of a folly so stupendous that they and all they stood for had to be abolished, no matter what the cost.

Mr. Baldwin is not being unduly pessimistic in suspecting that another great war would make the people of all warring nations feel the same way. And if they do—if the plain men and women of Italy and Germany and France ever get into the state of mind the Russians got into in the final year of the war—then we shall witness anarchy, bloodshed, and cruelty on a scale that the earth has never known before.

It is a frightful picture. Can any man contemplate it and doubt that the one thing Europe must do at any price is to keep the peace?

Can any catastrophe as great as the catastrophe a new war would bring be loosed upon this modern world?

Many of us have a variety of companions; but how few, through their whole lives, ever meet with a friend!

SUPPLY OF MONEY

In Major Angus' book on "Investment for Appreciation," under the chapter headed "Causes of the Business Cycle," the following is given under the heading of the definitions of money:

"(i) The Supply of Money. By the supply of money we mean coins not used as backing for notes; plus notes except those used as backing for bank deposits; plus transferable bank deposits, i. e., current or demand deposits as distinct from fixed or time deposits."

These current or demand deposits are what is sometimes called scribble entries in bank books and pass-books, which are transferable by means of checks, representing at least 80 per cent, in America, of what is used as money. The increase and decrease of this bank scribble credits is what is so confusing to most people and causes unlimited suffering because of the unfair distribution of the production of wealth. We are paying a terrific price for allowing 14,000 bankers to coin credit used as money, and so rapidly increase or decrease prices.

Under the same chapter, the author says: "This phenomenon of the cash reserve ratio system of banking is a vital factor influencing the modern business cycle."

If we are to have prosperity and justice, we must have a better money system and a better banking system.

"WORLD'S FAIR" REVIVALS

The old American habit of going to expositions seems to be reviving.

A generation ago the "world's fair" was a more or less regular feature of the landscape. When St. Louis, Chicago, or Buffalo put on a show of that kind, it would draw visitors from all over the country. People would go to be amused and stay to learn something.

And then, somehow, the habit fell into eclipse. After the San Francisco exposition of 1915 we had very few such ventures; and when the Philadelphia Sesqui-centennial flopped, it looked as if the country had outgrown the habit for good.

But now it has returned to us. Chicago set the style a couple of years ago. This summer the Texas Centennial is going great guns; in a more modest way, the Great Lakes Exposition at Cleveland is causing a stir. New York is planning a fair for 1939.

The "world's fair" is usually a lot of fun. It is good to see it staging a vigorous comeback.

INSULT TO A 'CZAR'

It is quite a comedown for that one-time big shot of Chicago's gangland, Al Capone, to achieve headlines because a disgruntled fellow convict gave him a superficial stab wound with a pair of scissors.

Time was when Capone had a name that made other gangsters tremble. In his own way he had the power of life and death, and he used it as his fancy dictated.

St. Valentine's Day massacres, machine gunnings of high and low degree, bombings, and beatings—these were the things he could mete out to lesser crooks who dared cross his path. And now . . . suspected of having been on the side of the law in a futile prison riot, he is slashed across the back with the point of a pair of barber shop scissors!

Could there be a more graphic illustration of the way the mighty have fallen?

VOTING AS WE PLEASE

Whatever are the political ramifications of the current campaign year, with its talk of third party movements, party "walks," and coalitions, this much is certain—the voters are going to use their franchise.

Already there are positive indications that the American electorate is going to take an unprecedented interest in voting this fall. In the recent Maine primary, for instance, unofficial totals reveal a vote exceeding that of 1932. And in recent primaries in other states the public interest has shown up equally well.

Certainly, this is one of the most healthful trends of our national life. Use of the ballot is a prerequisite of good citizenship. And it's great, too, to know that in a world already half muffled under dictatorship we in America continue to vote as we please!

JAYWALKER CONTROL

It's decidedly encouraging to note that the law has at last caught up with one of the leading annoyances of American city life—the jaywalker.

St. Louis has done just that. There the board of aldermen recently approved a pedestrian control bill which provides fines of $3 to $500 for jaywalking. St. Louis acted, officials explained, because they found jaywalking contributed in great measure to traffic fatalities and serious injuries.

And doubtless there is not another large city in the country in which this condition does not exist. The St. Louis system, possibly, is the answer.

POTENTIAL LEADERS

It now appears that the growing usefulness of American women in public life is going to refute the frequent criticism of Europeans that our women aren't politically important.

The recent session of the American Association of University Women indicates a healthy trend toward greater feminine leadership. In the last six years 52,000 women have joined under this banner with the common goal of civic leadership and good neighborhood.

The American woman is finding the key to a sound national life. One only hopes that the men are doing as well!

What Happens When a New Deal Prodigal Returns?

Day By Day In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

(Copyright, 1935)

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Today is the end of another fiscal year for the government of the United States.

Judging by what one heard at the New Deal convention last week, the American people are asked to believe that recovery is here or well on its way, that President Roosevelt and his policies have brought recovery, in fact have rescued the country from the depths of despair in 1932.

Yet, as the figures are made available, it now appears that the deficits are bigger each year and the amount to be spent for relief in 1937 will far exceed what was spent in 1932—the time when civilization in America was supposed to be nearing an end.

The total debt since the depression started is now in the neighborhood of $18,000,000,000 of which about $4,000,000,000 was incurred during the Hoover administration and about $14,000,000,000 since March 4, 1933.

No official explanation has been given as to why relief expenditures are to be larger in the fiscal year which begins today than they were in the fiscal year just ending. Nor has there been any lack of curiosity on the subject. Senator Byrd, Democrat, of Virginia, tried to find out on the last day of Congress in session and he questioned Senator Barkley, Democrat, of Kentucky, who was to be the keynote speaker at the Philadelphia convention and hence might be presumed to speak with knowledge and authority. Here is an excerpt from the debate:

"Senator Barkley: No senator on this floor who has demanded a reduction of the expenditures of our government has as yet pointed out where that reduction ought to be made."

"Senator Byrd: I can point out where the reduction can be made."

"Mr. Barkley: Very well."

"Mr. Byrd: I offered an amendment to reduce the relief appropriation 20 per cent. That amendment was defeated. And now I want to ask the senator at this point whether he thinks the national government should spend $1,000,000,000 more in the fiscal year 1937 than it will spend in the fiscal year 1936 in view of the improvement in conditions throughout the country."

"Mr. Barkley: I say the government ought to spend $1,000,000,000 or any other amount that is necessary to keep the American men, women and children from starving to death or freezing in the winter from cold."

"Mr. Byrd: Does the senator think that more money will be needed in 1937 to keep them from starving and freezing than is needed in 1936?"

There was no answer on that point and the debate degenerated somewhat, after which Senator Byrd came back to the same point thus:

"Does the senator from Kentucky favor spending $1,000,000,000 more in the fiscal year 1937 than was spent in the fiscal year 1936?"

To which Senator Barkley replied:

"I favor what I have voted for, and I have voted for all these appropriations."

So the official records on this matter of increasing expenses in the fiscal year 1937—which begins today—are unable to furnish a guide as to the reasons which actuated the legislative body and the executive in asking for more money for next year than the preceding year.

When fiscal year 1936 which ended yesterday is fully audited, it will be discovered that President Roosevelt's promise of a gradually receding deficit each year has not been kept. The latest official figures, those of June 26, show the following comparisons with last year at this time, given in round numbers:

This Year	Last Year
Expenses $8,793,000,000	$7,258,000,000
Receipts 4,080,000,000	3,758,000,000
Deficit 4,712,757,973	3,472,347,894
Public debt 32,950,895,453	28,665,773,433

Thus it will be seen that expenses are more than $1,500,000,000 higher and the deficit is about $1,300,000,000 bigger than last year, notwithstanding the fact that receipts are higher too.

It will be argued by the administration that much of the bonus money is included in this year's expense, in fact nearly all of it. Conceding this as having had a bearing on the deficit incurred, Senator Byrd's question is still unanswered—why is it that in the fiscal year beginning today, July 1, 1936, and running to June 30, 1937, the official estimate made by the director of the budget shows that the government of the United States under the New Deal administration intends, if it remains in power beyond January next, to spend for the full fiscal year $8,722,554,370?

Such an amount is in excess of every one of the three years of the Roosevelt administration and the year 1937 (eliminating all bonus expenses) in fact is to be the biggest year of spending of all the four years of the New Deal.

Nobody at the New Deal convention has explained the reason why the convention has offered any explanation. More will be heard of this in the campaign, for the New Dealers can hardly contend that recovery isn't here and yet that more money has to be spent now than in the years when the nation was rescued, as the president phrases it, from disaster in 1933.

The Republicans are wickedly suggesting that the explanation is to be found in the fact that there is an election being held in the year 1936 and that a political organization has to be maintained through current expenditure for public works projects and for "relief."

But such an explanation would only imply that, if the New Deal wins the prize, it will cut down expenses. This is not corroborated by the plans and commitments made for the next five years which are to be of increased scope and magnitude in various fields in which the government has already embarked. The deficits keep growing, tax revenues are inadequate to meet the expenses, and the trend of the public debt is higher and higher. That's the news on this, the end of the third fiscal year under the New Deal.

This afternoon I was out in the back street and I wanted to go to the front street so I made a short cut through our house, and what was on the buffet in the dining room but a swell looking layer cake with swell looking chocolate icing all over it.

Making me feel like having a hunk rite then, and I went up and asked Ma and she said it wasn't to be opened till dinner, so I went down and looked at it some more, looking better the longer I looked, and after dinner Nora brought in the cake, now Willyum, Benny has had all this cake he's going to have and I want you to bare me out if he starts an endless argument, she said.

Aw G. ma, heck, I said, and pop said, But the cake is still whole, how has anybody had any?

If you'll favor it with a little closer inspection you'll see countless finger marks all over the icing, ma said, and pop said, Yee gods I can see them from here, that's the limit.

Well good nite, pop, G. ma, wait till I tell you how it happened, I said, and ma said, I can imagine that part only too well, thanks.

I suppose a racketeer pushed a gun in your ribs and made you do it, pop said, and I said, No sir, I was walking through the dining room and I happened to notice it, and there was 2 little marks on it looking like finger prints, and I couldn't remember making any finger prints on it, but I wanted to be absolutely positive in case ma asked me later, so I made a few finger prints to see if they matched the ones that was already there, and I made a pretty good many to be absolutely sure, and none of them matched the first 2, so it wasn't me.

Not going into details about licking my finger between marks, and the general result was I finely got a extra small slice of the inside without any of the icing.

In The Long Ago

From The Register Files
25 Years Ago Today

July 1, 1911
June, 1911, smashed all marriage license records in Orange county, exceeding the record set a year ago when 110 licenses were issued here, the largest number in any single month in the county's history. But this year established a new record when 128 licenses were issued. Of this number, 78 were issued to couples neither of whom lived in Orange county.

Two heavy earthquake shocks only a few seconds apart occurred this afternoon at 2 o'clock in San Francisco. Sacramento and Stockton both felt the tremors, the heaviest since April, 1906. No serious damage was reported from any of the three cities.

Pipe lines extending from the Santa Ana plant of the Southern Counties Gas company were connected yesterday between Anaheim and Fullerton, and these territories will now be served with gas from the Santa Ana plant.

Mr. and Mrs. Mac Robbins left this morning for East Newport where they have taken a cottage for the next two weeks.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

GOVERNMENT BY GUESS

The other day, in his page in The Farm Journal, Walter B. Pitkin reminded us of an old yarn about the misadventures of the Peterkin Family who so many of us read in our boyhood.

Ma Peterkin prepared a kettle of hot water and ham bones, left it simmering, and went to town to do her shopping.

Pa Peterkin entered the kitchen after her departure, sniffed the unsatisfactory aroma from the kettle, and said to him self, "Hu! No onions!" He proceeded to chop finely three onions and drop them in the kettle.

Sue Peterkin came next, sniffed the aroma from the kettle, and she, too, found it unsatisfactory. She dropped a contribution of red pepper into the kettle.

Ed Peterkin came, sniffed, and decided that a turnip was needed to bring the concoction to perfection.

Jessie Peterkin came and decided that what was needed was the addition of some chunks of left-over val she found in the ice box.

Little Willie Peterkin threw in some crumbled up biscuits.

Noon time came. Pa Peterkin turned, tasted the stew and pronounced it mudslide.

It needed further fixing. Ma said it needed more salt and Eddie suggested garlic.

When it was finally lifted from the stove it was, at Pitkin said, neither soup nor stew, neither food or poison.

This is the end result of government by guess, of statesmanship that improvises, cuts and tries, racks and fills.

This hand to mouth statesmanship must be discouraged. We do not want single-track dogmatists, but we do want adherence to a few decided that a turnip was needed to bring the concoction to perfection.

OUR CHILDREN

KEEP ROUTINE FLEXIBLE

Mother was talking on the telephone. Don't wait for a sound reason, phone, and Marjorie was getting but let the excuse serve. You will ready to go for her regular Thursday find that the children return to the program without much loss of time.

"O, that is too bad, Frank. I wish I could let her go. Really, I don't think it is wise. This is her day to music and I never let anything interfere with it."

"What is it? Who is it, mother? Tell me."

"Quiet, Marjorie. Your Uncle Frank is trying to talk to me. N really Frank, I hate to say, N but she must not break into a schedule. Yes, I know, and it awfully good of you. Isn't there a other day you could take her?"

"Where, mother? What? What? Uncle Frank wants me to go. Can't I skip just one lesson and with him?"

"Be still, Marjorie, can't you? Well, I'm sorry you feel that way about it, Frank, but I have to carry the responsibility for the child. The beginning skipping lessons the will be no end to it."

"What was it, mother? You couldn't I get off this once?"

"You know, Marjorie, that I never allow anything to interfere with your lessons. They come first. I never make an engagement myself without first considering what it might mean to your program. Your Uncle Frank said that he doesn't think it is important enough for him to consider."

"Where did he want to take?"

"O, to the circus. It's the day for the special program for the children from hospitals and institutions, and there are to be some celebrities there, and all that. It is your music day."

"I wish you had let me call him up and say I can. I can make up the lesson. I haven't missed one in over a year. This is a special occasion, isn't it? I won't get the chance again. Please let me."

"There, I just know it. If the only one who looks after your welfare and I am the one that leads to appear selfish and dominating, the cruel parent, Uncle Frank might be ashamed of himself."

When routine is made a religion its benefits are threatened, children feel the strain of the daily rhythm, today, tomorrow, forever; it wears upon them after a time. A break is needed to allow rhythm to function at its best, then there is a good excuse for raking into the accepted schedule.

Between the first Thanksgiving and the first official designation of our modern Thanksgiving day as a national holiday, 243 years elapsed. The Pilgrims celebrated the former in 1621, while President Lincoln issued the first Thanksgiving proclamation in 1864.
